The Entrepreneurial Vision of the Economy of Communion:
Creating a Business Where All Can Flourish

Tuesday, April 14, 2015

James B. Woulfe Alumni Hall, Anderson Student Center

The Economy of Communion and its 850 participating businesses worldwide attract the interest of entrepreneurs, economists and scholars through their unique focus on business management and culture. EOC companies operate as for-profit enterprises that share a set of values they see as the foundation for business practices that emphasizes a culture for “giving” over a culture of “having.”
